

FOREST FIRE IS SUBDUED AFTER A WEEK'S FIGHT

After a week of hard fighting the battle with the fires which have been raging in Devil's Canyon was reported last night to have been successful. The blaze was controlled by means of fire breaks or burned itself out and unless heavy or variable winds arise no further danger is anticipated.

Seventy-five men came out from the West Fork Thursday on the way to their homes. Most of them were in rags and some were almost barefoot, the rough country and thick brush being too much for clothes and shoes. More of them were suffering from poison oak than from injury, though many of them were badly scratched by contact with the brush. They reported the decisive fight to have been won by Chief Ranger Brownlow and his men on the ridge dividing Devil's Canyon from the Tejuca, where there was grave fear the fire would spread into the watershed which supplies a considerable portion of the Los Angeles water supply.

Fire Rages a Week

The fire was first discovered on Friday of last week, and reported by the employees of Mt. Wilson Hotel. Failing to get the office of Forest Supervisor Charlton on the telephone the rangers within reach were notified directly.

Devil's Canyon is one of the largest tributaries of the West Fork of the San Gabriel which it enters about eight miles east of Mt. Wilson. The canyon sides are precipitous and bore a fairly thick covering of brush and some timber.

On Friday and Saturday fire fighting forces were sent in over the Sturtevant Trail from Sierra Madre and by way of the main San Gabriel canyon from Azusa. Chief Ranger O. B. Brownlow took personal direction of the fight and was assisted by Rangers Gale Dunstan from the Arroyo Seco, William Krowl from Sierra Madre and Norman Ross. The first forces sent to the scene of trouble consisted of anybody and everybody within reach who was physically able. Later Supervisor Charlton sent in a large number of Mexican laborers and the men on duty were relieved. Several pack trains of provisions were sent in from Trail.

Stubborn Fight Required

The contour of the canyon made a fight at close range impracticable. Consequently the men were put to work clearing fire breaks along the ridges and on patrol duty to extinguish fires arising from flying embers. Many times the flames leaped across the wide fire breaks and made a new fight necessary.

At one time the wind veered around into the northeast, sending the smoke and flying embers into the densely wooded slopes of the West Fork. Pieces of ash as large as a dollar fell in the streets of Sierra Madre. There were grave fears felt lest the entire front range might be burned over as a result of the widely scattered sparks. A fortunate change in the wind sent the fire northward again and made it possible to concentrate efforts on confining it to the Devil's Canyon basin. It finally burned itself out on the rocky slopes of Mt. Waterman and Twin Peaks which rise to the northeast and north. The chief danger remained on the ridge dividing Devil's Canyon and the Tejuca and the last big fight was made there.

Fifty fresh men went into the fire zone on Wednesday. They will be kept on duty for a week or more doing patrol work until the rangers are satisfied the last vestige of fire is extinguished.

On the word of several of the rangers who have been in the thick of the battle, human lives at no time were in danger. An account of the thrilling rescue of fifteen Mexicans who were imprisoned and without food for an unmeasured space of time in a vaguely located part of Devil's Canyon, and were rescued, attired in gunny sacks and blisters, is denied by men arriving from the front.

The report emanated from the West Fork, but could not be confirmed. Three Mexicans were taken ill while fighting fire and were helped to the ranger's camp. This was the nearest to a rescue.

Fears were felt for the safety of several camping parties in the Pine Flats region when the fire first started. They were near enough to the danger zone to make their friends and relatives uneasy until assured that they were not in immediate danger and were in a position to make a quick escape.

CIVICS STUDY CLUB

The next regular meeting of the Civics Study Club will be held in the Woman's club house parlors on Monday afternoon, September 1. The subject for discussion will be the proposed constitutional amendments to be placed on the ballot at the November election.

PROGRESSIVE RALLY

VOTERS ARE INVITED TO HEAR THE ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN DISCUSSED

Progressive Republicans of Sierra Madre will hold a rally in the Woman's Club house Saturday evening, August 31. All voters are invited to attend and hear the issues of the campaign and the merits of the candidates discussed. The speakers for the evening will be Guy Eddie, city prosecutor of Los Angeles, Mrs. Cora Lewis of Los Angeles and Egbert J. Gates of South Pasadena. The latter is the progressive candidate for assemblyman from this district and the meeting will afford an excellent opportunity for the voters to make his acquaintance.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES

Church of the Ascension, the Rev. Dr. George H. Cornell, rector. Thirtieth Sunday after Trinity. Sunday school, 9:45 a. m.; sermon and holy communion, 11 a. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

FIGHTING REAL FIRE

Dating from the time when preachers were supposed to be engaged in rescuing sinners from a pit of fire and brimstone there has come down a worn joke which denominated men of the cloth as "fire fighters." Rev. W. H. Hannaford of the First Congregational Church won his right to the literal title last week. Oddly enough the scene of his apprenticeship was Devil's Canyon, a very appropriate place for a minister to fight fire. With Miss Ruth Hannaford he had been enjoying an outing in the West Fork of the San Gabriel in camp with Mr. and Mrs. Greer Caskey. Leaving for home on Friday he had traveled as far as Sturtevant's Camp when reports of the forest fire in Devil's Canyon were received. Claiming no immunity from such service by reason of his profession he joined the first company of fire fighters which started for the scene of trouble. Returning to the West Fork he went with them down to the point where the forest officials sought to starve the fire by constructing a wide firebreak. After spending two days with the fighters he returned to camp and came out to Sierra Madre early this week, having had a rather novel experience for his first mountain outing in Southern California.

LABOR DAY IN PASADENA

Labor Day will be observed in Pasadena with an all-day program given under the auspices of the Pasadena Labor Day Association. All events will be free and the public is invited to attend and have a good time. The principal feature will be a big program of races and games at Tournament Park in the afternoon.

Miss Katherine Torrance has been spending the week at Terminal Island as the guest of Miss Beatrice Burnham.

MUST REMOVE WEEDS

PENALTY PROVIDED FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH TERMS OF ORDINANCE

Weeds must go. The campaign for the removal of inflammable and unsightly weeds which has been going on so successfully for several weeks will be carried to a finish. Nearly all lot owners have done the work as soon as notice was served on them and some did not wait even to receive a notice. Only a few have been delinquent and the city authorities are determined that these shall not be immune from the regulations of the ordinance.

Street Superintendent Udell says that all lots which have not been cleaned up by the time of the next meeting of the city trustees will be cleaned by the city and the expense charged to the property owners, together with the penalty of $10 which is provided for in the ordinance. He has been instructed to prepare an estimate of the expense necessary for doing the work as is required, and the trustees have declared that the order will then be given for the work to be done. The removal of the weeds serves three excellent purposes, namely the lessening of fire danger, the killing of fruit scale pests and removal of a breeding place for them, and the improvement in the appearance of vacant lots.

CONGREGATIONAL SERVICES

Rev. W. H. Hannaford expects to be in his pulpit at the Congregational Church next Sunday at the usual hours. In the morning he will speak on "The Greatness of John the Baptist." In the evening the theme will be "The Hills From Whence Cometh Our Help."

FOR JOINT POLE SYSTEM

The electric lighting, telephone and street railway companies of San Bernardino have made arrangements to inaugurate the "one-pole" system in that city. Work is to begin at once on the construction of the joint pole line on Third street. Sixty-foot poles will be used. This is a reminder that a similar project was taken up in Sierra Madre by the Board of Trade some months since. Elimination of all the superfluous poles from the streets of a city works a vast improvement in appearance.

WHO ARE REPUBLICANS IN CALIFORNIA TODAY?

Russ Avery of Los Angeles replying to a communication from Vincent Morgan, chairman of the so-called county Republican Club, asking him whether in his capacity as national Republican committeeman from California he intends to support President Taft for renomination, defines his position and that of the Progressives in California so clearly, logically and unequivocally that there is no need for anyone to misunderstand it.

Mr. Avery denies that the Republican party of the state of California is at present affiliated with any national party and says that its affiliation will be determined by the result of the primary election to be held next Tuesday. Meantime, he questions the right of Mr. Morgan and his associates to arrogate to themselves the right to represent all the republican voters of Los Angeles county without the consent of the latter.

Letter of Mr. Morgan

Mr. Morgan's letter to Mr. Avery follows:

"Los Angeles, Aug. 20.
"Russ Avery, Esq., Laughlin Bldg., City."

"Dear Sir: As chairman of the campaign committee of the Republican club of Los Angeles city and county, an organization supporting the republican ticket, I wish to ask whether or not you, in your capacity as national committeeman of the Republican party for the state of California, or personally, intend to support William Howard Taft, the nominee of that party for president of the United States?"

"Your position in this matter should be known, inasmuch as I deem it your duty to support the republican national ticket or resign from the office that you now occupy as national committeeman. Respectfully,
"VINCENT MORGAN,
"Chairman."

Following is Mr. Avery's reply to the foregoing:

"Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 29, 1912.
"Mr. Vincent Morgan, 703 Merchants Trust building, Los Angeles:

"Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the letter purporting to emanate from you as chairman of the Republican Club of Los Angeles city and county. The name of your organization would seem to indicate that you arrogate to yourself and associates the prerogative of representing all the Republican voters of this county. This you cannot well do without their consent.

"While I do not recognize your right to interrogate me, and maintain that your so-called Republican Club has no official standing of any sort, representing nobody and noth-

FRUIT TRAFFIC GAINS

SOUTHERN PACIFIC ADDS TO ITS REFRIGERATOR CAR EQUIPMENT

One thousand new refrigerator cars, equipped with collapsible tanks with a capacity of 11,000 pounds of ice, will soon be delivered to the Pacific Fruit Express Company, a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific Company. The collapsible tanks will enable the company to use the cars for ordinary freight during the periods that the cars are not required for perishables. The first installment of these new cars will be started westward within another month and they will immediately go into service.

This order of 1,000 new cars is an increase of ten per cent and makes the total refrigerator equipment of this company 11,000 cars. The latest refrigeration ideas have been adopted in the building of the cars and a most effective insulation will line the interiors. Five years ago the Pacific Fruit Express Company had 6,600 of these cars, but the growing fruit and produce business of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and other Pacific Coast states has caused nearly a thousand additional cars to be purchased annually.

The equipment of this character owned by the Pacific Fruit Express Company represents an outlay of more than $15,000,000. This new order will total nearly a million and a half dollars, at an approximate cost of $1,400 each. The unceasing development of the west's horticultural and agricultural resources and the transformation of deserts into green orchards and fields creates the demand for more of these cars each year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Kersting and little Katherine will leave Saturday for the east. They will go up the coast to British Columbia and then travel over the Canadian Pacific. They will visit their former home in Michigan and at Detroit Mr. Kersting will attend the meeting of the American Bankers' Association. Later they will visit New York city and other eastern cities.

Miss Dona Moses of Los Angeles who is a classmate of Miss Dorothy Camp at the Marlborough School, has been spending the past week at Miss Camp's home on Grand View avenue.

STRONG DIRECTORATE FOR PROGRESSIVE LOCAL BANK

With the recent re-organization of the directorate of the First National Bank of Sierra Madre President Kersted and the bank has been placed in a position where big advances are bound to result. All of the present directors are men of affairs who have made their own way in the world and have achieved marked success in their own business. All have had previous banking experience and may be considered competent to give sound advice on the conduct of a first class financial institution. Business is reported to be increasing in spite of the summer tendency to dullness.

Mr. Kersting has been president of the bank for about six years, during which time it has achieved practically its entire growth. He is one of the largest property owners in Sierra Madre, holding about 700 feet of business frontage, much of which is improved with substantial buildings. He has been actively identified with every movement for civic progress. Before coming to California he was engaged in the lumber and fuel business on a large scale in Michigan, and was a director and large stockholder in a bank in his home town.

F. N. Hawes is vice president of the Granite Savings Bank and cashier of the American National Bank of Monrovia which recently moved into its own building. The quarters are reputed to be among the finest occupied by any country bank in the state. Mr. Hawes has been associated with these two institutions nine years during which the deposits have increased from $4,000 to $100,000. He is recognized as one of the foremost bankers of Southern California.

C. H. Baker of Sierra Madre is the head of the chain of Baker shoe stores, of which there are eight in various Pacific Coast cities. Their annual business amounts to more than $1,000,000, making it by far the greatest shoe concern west of the Rocky Mountains. Its marvelous growth in the past few years under Mr. Baker's guidance has been ample demonstration of Mr. Baker's business ability and capacity for big things.

C. H. Ainley of Monrovia was formerly one of the most prominent financiers of Iowa. For thirty years he was engaged in insurance and banking, most of the time in executive positions. He is president of both the American National and Granite Savings Banks of Monrovia. He has extensive land holdings both in Iowa and California.

W. C. Patterson is vice president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles as well as of the two Monrovia banks with which Messrs. Hawes and Ainley are associated. He is a man of large banking experience and highest standing in Los Angeles banking circles.

Wm. Baird of Monrovia is a retired banker who came recently from Wyoming and purchased the well known Fitzgerald ranch. He is the possessor of a large fortune and is said to be a man of excellent business judgment.

N. W. Tarr of Sierra Madre completes the list of directors. He is president of the firm of Tarr & McComb, who are among the largest dealers in Southern California in hay, grain, coal and oil. He is interested financially in a variety of enterprises and his counsel is much sought. He is among Sierra Madre's most public spirited citizens and as the very active president of the Board of Trade has shown himself to be a booster of the first rate.

F. W. Nuetzel who has been serving as cashier of the bank since the re-organization has won many friends by his efficiency and courteous treatment. Before coming to Sierra Madre he was a teller in one of the largest banks in Memphis, an institution having deposits of eight millions or more.

Much New Equipment

New equipment which will form an important acquisition to the bank has been contracted for and is expected to arrive soon. Most important will be a burglar alarm system of the latest type. A large gong alarm noisy enough to awaken the town will be placed on the outside of the building in a securely protected case. Electrical connections will be carried to the gong from a steel lining which will be installed in the vault, and from alarm buttons at all the desks in the bank. In case of a holdup the alarm can be set off from any point in the bank. Burglars who might succeed in penetrating the two feet of concrete and railroad steel in the walls of the vault would set the gong ringing the moment they touched the steel lining of the vault. Interference with any of the wires of the alarm system would also ring the gong, inviting the burglar to drop his tools and run. This will make complete the vault which is constructed on the most approved principles.

A new safe of harveized steel has been purchased and will be installed inside the vault. The safe has a cylindrical door which twists into place like the breech mechanism of a 13-inch rifle. It is secured by a double combination lock with double time mechanism. The lock works with either clock, lessening the danger of "lock-outs" in case of mishap to the clock.

A large steel chest or cabinet will be installed for the reception of large packages which would not go into the safe deposit drawers. An "omnibus" will be provided with receptacles for card files, pass books, current correspondence and books, the whole being so mounted as to be wheeled easily into the vault at night. A steel grill will be installed midway between the door and rear wall of the vault. The safe deposit boxes will be in front of the grill and no one will have access to the space at the rear except employees. A convenient writing desk and chair recently placed in the bank lobby has been greatly appreciated by ladies.

Miss Lenore Morgan, who has been spending the summer here, entertained twelve young lady friends on Tuesday with a delightful picnic in the canyon near the quarter-way house. All those present were classmates of Miss Morgan when she attended the Normal School in Los Angeles some time ago and were from Los Angeles and vicinity.

Prof. Ellsworth Bethel, a noted botanist from Denver, Colo., has been visiting his cousin, W. C. Hall. Prof. Bethel is instructor in biology in the East Denver High School and curator of the Colorado State herbarium.

Mrs. Jerome Rice and Miss Margerle Rice returned Wednesday from East Newport where they have been the past few weeks.

Six Rules to Observe to Prevent Disastrous Fires in the Mountains

RULES TO PREVENT MOUNTAIN FIRES

Precautions of the simplest kind would eliminate most of the loss resulting from forest fires, as shown by reports on the causes of the fires in the reserves last season.

Much could be accomplished by observance of the following six simple rules:

1. Be sure your match is out before you throw it away.
2. Knock out your pipe ashes or throw away your cigar or cigarette stump where there is nothing to catch fire.
3. Don't build a camp fire any larger than is absolutely necessary. Never leave it even for a short time without putting it OUT with water or dirt.
4. Don't build a camp fire against a tree or a log. Build a small one where you can scrape away the needles, leaves or grass from all sides of it.
5. If you discover a fire, put it out if possible; if you can't put it out, get word to the nearest U. S. forest ranger or state fire warden just as quickly as you possibly can.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By STRATTON PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

CHAPTER XIX.

Wherein Philip Ammon is Shown Limberlost Violets.

MMON looked at the girl in wonder. In face and form she was as lovely as any one of her age and type he had ever seen.
Her school work far surpassed that of most girls of her age he knew. She differed in other ways. This vast store of learning she had gathered from field and forest was a wealth of attraction no other girl possessed. Her frank, matter of fact manner was an inheritance from her mother, but there was something more. Once, as they talked he thought "sympathy" was the word to describe it and again "comprehension." She seemed to possess a large sense of brotherhood for all human and animate creatures. She might as well have been a boy, so lacking was she in any touch of feminine coquetry toward him. He studied her wonderfully.

As they went along the path they reached a large slime covered pool surrounded by decaying stumps and logs thickly covered with water hyacinths and blue flags. Ammon stopped.

"Is that the place?" he asked.

Elnora assented.

"The doctor told you?"

"Yes. It was tragic. Is that pool really bottomless?"

"So far as we ever have been able to discover."

"And you were born here?"

He had not intended to voice that thought.

"Yes," she said looking into his eyes.
"Just in time to prevent my mother from saving the life of my father. She came near never forgiving me. A little farther along is my violet bed. I want you to see it."

She led him into a swampy half open space in the woods, stopped and stepped aside. Ammon uttered a cry of surprised delight. A few decaying logs were scattered around, the grass grew in tufts long and fine. Blue flags waved, clusters of cowslips nodded gold heads, but the whole earth was purple with a thick blanket of violets nodding from stems a foot in length. Elnora kneelt and slipping her fingers through the leaves and grasses to the roots, gathered a few violets and gave them to Philip.

"Can your city greenhouses surpass them?" she asked.

Ammon sat on a log to examine the blooms.

"They are superb!" he said. "I never saw such length of stem or such rank leaves, while the flowers are the deepest blue, the truest violet I ever saw growing wild. They are colored exactly like the eyes of the girl I am going to marry."

Elnora handed him several others to add to those he held.

"She must have wonderful eyes," she commented.

"No other blue eyes are quite so beautiful," he said. "In fact, she is altogether lovely."

"It is customary for a man to think the girl he is going to marry lovely. I wonder if I should find her so."

"You would," said Ammon. "No one ever fails to. She is tall as you, very slender, but perfectly rounded; you know about her eyes; her hair is black and wavy, while her complexion is clear and flushed with red."

Elnora knelt among the flowers as she looked at him.

"Why, she must be the most beautiful girl in the whole world," she cried.
Ammon laughed.

"No, indeed," he said. "She is not a particle better looking in her way than you are in yours. She is a type of dark beauty, but you are just as perfect. She is unusual in her combination of black hair and violet eyes, although every one thinks them black at a little distance. You are quite as unusual with your fair face, black brows and brown hair. Indeed, I know many people who would prefer your bright head to her dark one. It's all a question of taste—and being engaged to the girl," he added.

"Edith has a birthday soon. If these last will you let me have a box of them to send her?"

"I will help gather and pack them for you, so they will carry nicely. Is she interested in nature?"

"What interests Edith Carr? Let me think. First, I believe she takes pride in being just a little handsomer and better dressed than any girl of her set.
She is interested in having a beautiful home, fine appointments about her, in being petted, praised and the acknowledged leader of society. She likes to find new things which amuse her and to always and in all circumstances have her own way about everything."

"Good gracious!" cried Elnora, starting at him. "But what does she do?
How does she spend her time?"

"Spend her time!" repeated Ammon.
"Well, she would call that a joke. Her days are never long enough. There is endless shopping to find the pretty things, regular visits to the dressmakers, calls, parties, theaters, entertainments. She is always rushed. I never get to see half as much of her as I would like."

"But I mean work," persisted Elnora.
"In what is she interested that is useful to the world?"

"Me!" cried Ammon promptly.

"I can understand that," laughed El-nora. "What I can't understand is how you can be in"—She stopped short in confusion, but she saw that he had finished the sentence as she had intended. "I beg your pardon," she cried. "I didn't mean to say that. But I cannot understand these people I hear about who live only for their own amusement. Perhaps it is very great.
I'll never have a chance to know. To me it seems the only pleasure in this world worth having is the joy we get out of living for those we love and those we can help. I hope you are not angry with me."

Ammon sat silently looking far away,
with deep thought in his eyes.

"You are angry," faltered Elnora.

His look came back to her as she kneelt before him among the flowers and he gazed at her steadily.

"No doubt I should be," he said.
"but the fact is I am not. I cannot understand a life purely for personal pleasure myself. But she is only a girl, and this is her playtime. When she is a woman in her own home, then she will be different, will she not?"

Elnora never resembled her mother so closely as when she answered that question.

"I would have to be well acquainted with her to know, but I should hope so. To make a real home for a tired business man is a very different kind of work from that required to be a leader of society. It demands different talent and education. Of course, she means to change, or she would not have promised to make a home for you. I suspect our dope is cool now. Let's go try for some butterflies."

"You should hear my sister Polly!"
said Ammon. "This was her last year in college. Lunches and sororities were all I heard her mention, until Tom Levering came on deck; now he is the leading subject."

"Is Edith Carr a college girl?"

"No. She is the very selectest kind of a private boarding school girl."

As they went back along the path together Elnora talked of many things, but Ammon answered absently. Evidently he was thinking of something else. But the moth bait recalled him, and he was ready for work as they made their way back to the woods. He wanted to try the Limberlost, but El-nora was firm about keeping on home ground. She did not tell him that lights hung in the swamp would be a signal to call up a band of men whose presence she dreaded. So they set out, Ammon carrying the dope, Elnora the net, Billy and Mrs. Comstock following with cyanide boxes and lanterns.

First they tried for butterflies and captured several fine ones with little trouble. They also called swarms of ants, beetles, bees and flies. When it grew dusk Mrs. Comstock and Ammon went to prepare supper. Elnora and Billy remained until the butterflies went to bed. Then they lighted the lanterns, repainted the trees and followed the home trail.

Mrs. Comstock and Elnora were finishing breakfast the next morning when they heard a cheery whistle down the road. Elnora with surprised eyes looked at her mother.

It was just sunrise, but the music was Philip Ammon. He looked stronger than yesterday.

"I hope I am not too early," he said.
"I am consumed with anxiety to learn
if we have made a catch."

"We will have to wander along the roads and around the edge of the Limberlost today," said Elnora. "Mother is making strawberry preserves, and she can't come until she finishes. Suppose we go down to the swamp, and I'll show you what is left of the flower room that Terrence O'More, the big lumberman of Great Rapids, made when he was a homeless boy here. He was called Freckles. Of course, you have heard the story?"

"Yes, and I've met the O'Mores, who

C.H. WINDHAM FOR CONGRESS

Judging from the expression of sentiment among the voters throughout the Ninth Congressional district it would appear that C. H. Windham has a substantial lead over his opponents. Mr. Windham's business-like talks and his thorough methods of campaigning appeal to the average voter. The fact that he has proven himself, beyond a doubt, of being thoroughly capable of filling all the requirements demanded of a successful representative of this district, together with his definite stand for abiding by the true spirit

THE ENDORSEMENT OF THE GOOD GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION

The candidates for the bench of this county at the coming primary election who were endorsed by the Good Government Organization are of such character, both as to integrity and general ability and fitness, as to make any possible adverse criticism of the endorsement itself, a matter entirely negligible. The endorsement of the candidacy of Judge Frederick W. Houser for re-election is meeting with universal approval. His private life is above reproach and he has made a splendid record as a judge. The lawyers of this county are almost unanimous in support of Judge Houser's candidacy, and there appears to be a general feeling in the minds of all classes of citizens that his services should be retained.

Which will pull the load—the unbroken colt or the horse that is trained to harness? James McLachlan of Pasadena has had twelve years' experience in congress. Sent back there he can accomplish something for the ninth district and for California. A new man must be apprenticed for an entire term before he is available for effective work, and then may be found wanting. Vote for McLachlan at the September primaries.

of the preferential Primary Law, has won for him thousands of votes. The people realize that a practical man is a man for them and also a man who refuses to allow his name to be connected with any domineering organization, has the proper amount of independence to act as an impartial representative for his constituency. The final decision of the voters of this district will be registered next Tuesday and from the present outlook C. H. Windham will be the nominee for congress from the Ninth Congressional district.

JUDGE PAUL J. McCORMICK

Judge Paul J. McCormick who is a candidate to succeed himself as judge of the superior court has lived here thirty (30) years. He has presided in the criminal department two years during which time he has made an enviable record. He is patient, industrious, conscientious and capable and has demonstrated his ability as a jurist. By his courteous treatment of all he has won the admiration of both bar and laymen. He was elected two years ago as a non-partisan by a large majority. He is instructor in criminal law in the University of Southern California. His candidacy has been endorsed by the good government organization, and by practically the entire bar of the county of Los Angeles.

"I earnestly hope the time will come when the tariff will be placed in the hands of a non-partisan commission, and will no longer figure in politics. But until this time somebody must fight for a tariff on citrus fruits, walnuts, beet sugar and olives. Without it California will be sick indeed."—James McLachlan, candidate for congress in the Ninth district. Vote for him at the September primaries.

are frequently in Chicago society." They went down the road to the swamp, climbed the snake fence, followed the path to the old trail and then turned south along it. Elnora indicated to Ammon the trail with remnants of sagging barbed wire.

"It was ten years ago," she said. "I was just a little schoolgirl, but I wandered widely even then, and no one cared. I saw him often. He had been in a city institution all his life, when he took the job of keeping timber thieves out of this swamp, before many trees had been cut. It was a strong man's work and he was a frail boy, but he grew harder as he lived out of doors, and he won."

"Some days his face was dreadfully sad, some days it was so determined a little child could see the force in it, and once it was radiant. That day the Swamp Angel was with him. I can't tell you what she was like. I never saw any one who resembled her. He stopped near here to show her a bird's nest. Then they went on to a sort of flower room he had made, and he sang for her. By the time he left I had got bold enough to come out on the trail, and I met the big Scotchman Freckles lived with. He saw me catching moths and butterflies, so he took me to the flower room and gave me everything there. I don't dare come alone often, and so I can't keep it up as he did, but you can see something of how it was."

Elnora led the way and Ammon followed. The outlines of the room were not distinct, because many of the trees were gone, but Elnora showed how it had been as nearly as she could.

"The swamp is almost ruined now," she said. "The maples, walnuts and cherries are all gone. The talking trees are the only things left worth while."

"The 'talking trees' I don't understand," commented Ammon.

"No wonder!" laughed Elnora. "They are my discovery. You know all trees whisper and talk during the summer, but there are two that have so much to say they keep on the whole winter when the others are silent. The beeches and oaks so love to talk they cling to their dead, dry leaves. In the winter the winds are stiffest and blow most, so these trees whisper, chatter, sob, laugh and at times roar until the sound is deafening. When the air is cold and clear, the world very white and the harp music swelling, then the talking trees tell the strengthening, uplifting things."

"You wonderful girl!" cried Ammon. "What a woman you will be!"

"If I am a woman at all worth while it will be because I have had such wonderful opportunities," said Elnora. "Not every girl is driven to the forest to learn what God has to say there. Here are the remains of 'Freckles' room. The time the Angel came here he sang to her and I listened. I never heard music like that. No wonder she loved him. Everyone who knew him did, and they do yet. Try that log, it makes a fairly good seat. This old store box was his treasure house, just as it's now mine. I will show you my dearest possession. I do not dare take it home because mother can't overcome her dislike for it. It was my father's, and in some ways I am like him. This is the strongest."

THE CRISIS.

ONCE to every man and nation comes the moment to decide In the strife of truth with falsehood for the good or evil side Some great cause, God's new Messiah offering each the bloom or blight.

Parts the goats upon the left hand the sheep upon the right And the choice goes by forever 'twixt that darkness and that light

Then to side with truth is noble when we share her wretched crust, Ere her cause bring fame and profit and tis prosperous to be just Then it is the brave man chooses, while the coward stands aside, Doubting in his abject spirit till his Lord is crucified

"MILLIONS FOR THE PEOPLE BUT NOT ONE CENT FOR RAILROAD-OWNED STEAMSHIPS."

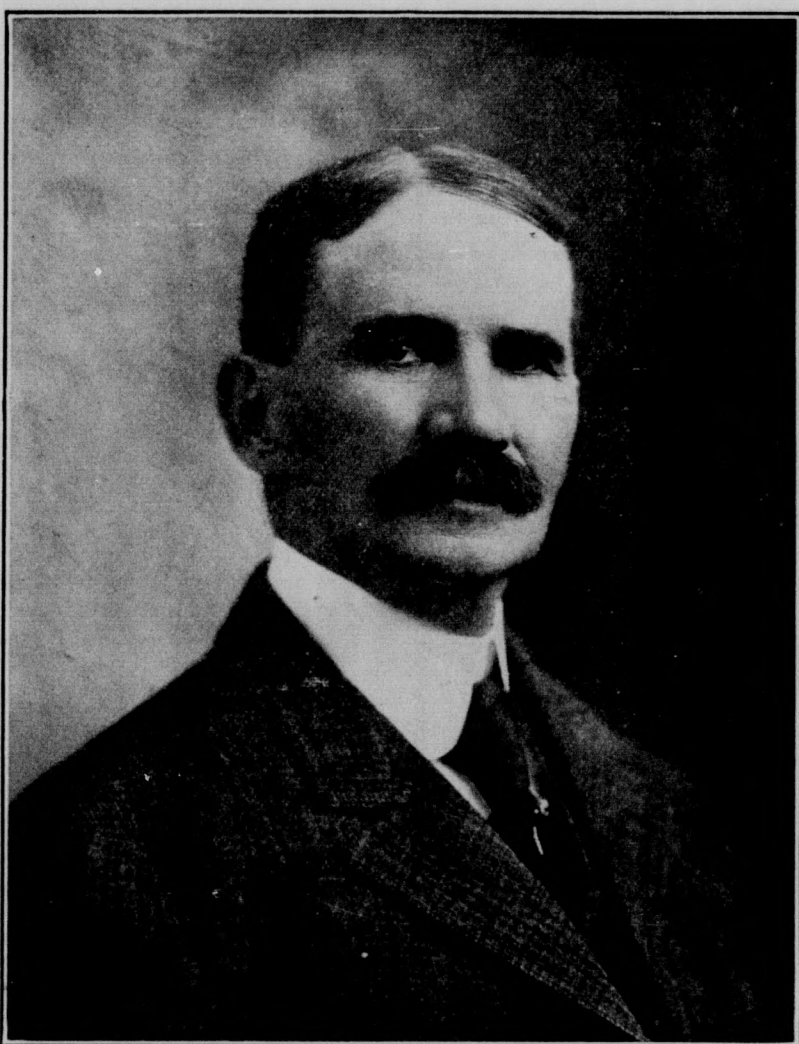

—James McLachlan

Republican Candidate For Congress in the Ninth District VOTE FOR HIM ON SEPTEMBER 3

James McLachlan, twelve years in the House of Representatives, is the author of the $10,000,000 Ship Subsidy bill, introduced during President Roosevelt's administration, which calls for a line of steamships, owned and operated by the people, plying between the Atlantic and the Pacific, through the canal, thus depriving the railroads of every opportunity to take exorbitant toll from the Pacific Coast rancher and producer.

On James McLachlan's return to Washington he will reopen vigorously the fight to make this Ship Subsidy bill a law. He said this week:

"Two great protective policies must be maintained that the Pacific Coast shall continue to prosper. We must own our steamships in order to escape transcontinental railroad domination, and we must continue our present figure of tariff on oranges, lemons, walnuts, olives, raisins and sugar-beets."

The Los Angeles Express said of this bill:

"No proposal of great importance to Los Angeles and the entire Pacific Coast was ever suggested than that contained in the bill introduced in Congress by Representative James McLachlan. His bill directing the Panama Railroad Company, now owned by the government, to establish a line of steamers on the Pacific, touching at San Pedro and all other important parts of the Pacific Coast of the United States, Mexico and Central America, if enacted, will do more to stimulate commerce on the Pacific Coast than any other thing that could be brought about."

"McLachlan of this district, has become at a single bound, the foremost Pacific Coast figure in the National Legislature."

"James McLachlan secured more appropriations than any other member in the history of the national body. Some of them are:

For San Pedro Harbor.....$4,261,000
For the fortification of the harbor 250,000
For the Federal Building in Los Angeles 1,000,000
For the Federal Building in Pasadena 250,000
For the site for postoffice in Long Beach 40,000
For the Soldiers' Home, to date, over 300,000

STUDY YOUR BALLOT

With the approach of Tuesday's primary election it behooves the voters to acquaint themselves with the merits of the various candidates for party and judicial nomination. Interest centers chiefly in the non-partisan judiciary and the Republican party contests, the other parties presenting not more than one candidate for each office in this district. A brief survey of the field may be of interest and assistance to some puzzled voters. For that purpose let us take the sample ballot sent out from the county clerk's office to Republican voters of the precinct.

In the first column we find the names of twenty-seven candidates for nomination for the superior court. This list appears on the primary ballots of all parties, the election of judges being on a non-partisan basis. You can vote for five. The ten candidates out of the twenty-seven receiving the highest vote at the primaries will appear on the ballot in November and from their number five judges will be chosen. The selection of the five best men out of this long list is the most difficult task confronting the voter. About half of them are totally unknown to the general public and some are not fit to be township justices. Four of the number are incumbents seeking re-election, namely Judges Hutton, McCormick, Rives and Houser. Judge Hutton has been the target for much criticism, largely because of loose discipline allowed in the conduct of the Darrow trial. He is generally regarded as having small chance of re-election and may be eliminated. The other three incumbents are strong men and stand well with almost all elements. They have been endorsed by the Good Government organization. The writer favored the law making possible the recall of judges but is of the opinion that judges giving acceptable service should be returned to office. Robert McDonald is a justice of the peace in Pasadena township with an excellent record. Fred H. Taft of Santa Monica and Charles Wellborn of Los Angeles are well known and able attorneys, both having the endorsement of the Good Government organization in addition to the three incumbents mentioned above. John M. York and G. Ray Horton are among the brightest and most capable of the younger attorneys of the county. York is a son of Judge Waldo M. York, who has many friends in Sierra Madre. Horton is chief trial deputy under District Attorney Fredericks. There may be good material among the rest of the lot, but no mistake will be made in voting for any of these eight men.

The Congressional Fight

Fives names appear in the second column on the ballot as candidates for congress from the ninth district. Charles W. Bell of Pasadena has been a member of the state senate for many years. He is one of the pioneer progressives of California, having stood up for progressive measures in the legislature when it meant something to take such a stand against the overwhelming railroad majority. He has been among the foremost workers for humanitarian measures, the anti-race-track gambling and local option laws. He has the endorsement of the Roosevelt Republican League. His long experience as a legislator should be of service to him in congress.

James McLachlan of Pasadena wants to "come back," having been a member of congress from the old seventh district. He was overwhelmingly defeated for the nomination in 1910 by W. D. Stephens. Although claiming to be a progressive he stood consistently with the reactionary element when in congress. He is classified as a Taft man though he has not openly stated his allegiance either to Taft or Roosevelt.

Sloan Pitzer is city attorney of Alhambra and is a supporter of Taft and his administration. He is clean and capable but is not regarded as cutting much of a figure in the contest.

Charles H. Randall of Los Angeles is editor of the Highland Park Herald and has served a term as a member of the assembly. He is a clean and capable worker, thoroughly progressive and one of the most efficient members of the last legislature. He is making his fight not only independent of but against the element at present in control of the county organization.

C. H. Windham has served as mayor of Long Beach where he resides. He is making his campaign in the country districts and is frankly after McLachlan votes on a tariff platform. He resided twelve years in Central America where he became thoroughly familiar with the fruit industry. Consequently he is familiar with the citrus industry not only in Southern California but in our nearest competitive territory, as well as with transportation problems. He is also a practical beet sugar man and is basing his fight largely on the assistance which he thinks he could give these two industries in securing just tariff protection. He is said to be clean and able and a sound progressive. Like Randall he is fighting the present leaders of the progressive organization.

With three progressives in the field against two reactionaries it is obviously necessary for the progressives to get together on one candidate to avoid defeat through division of their forces. And even putting it on the basis of "getting things" in congress for this district, including citrus protection, it would be plainly foolish to expect a reactionary like McLachlan to make headway in a congress which is certain to be progressive or democratic. The News could be satisfied with either of the three progressive candidates but regards Bell as having the best chance of securing the nomination. Progressive readers are therefore advised to vote for him and assist in making it a sure thing.

For State Senator

Only one aspirant appears for the nomination for state senator, Newton W. Thompson of San Gabriel appearing to succeed himself.

For the Assembly

For the assembly the fight is clean cut and presents no difficulties. William H. Evans of Monrovia is a perfectly nice man and a strong candidate except for the fact that he is a Taft man and against the progressive movement. For those two reasons he will not be nominated.

Egbert J. Gates of South Pasadena is the progressive candidate. He is a Roosevelt man, selected after two conferences of representatives from every precinct in the sixty-ninth district. He is a young man with a record indicating rather remarkable ability, having worked his own way through college and since achieved a conspicuous success in business. He is a thoroughly sound progressive and will undoubtedly receive a large majority of the votes. The News would devote more space to his candidacy but regards his nomination as a sure thing, making further attention unnecessary.

County Convention Delegates

Blanks are left on the ballot for two delegates to the county republican convention. Sierra Madre precinct being entitled to that number of representatives. The names may be written in or stickers may be affixed. The progressive candidates are F. D. R. Moore and C. C. Montgomery. The convention will have little to do aside from selecting a county central committee.

OUR NEW STORE

will be one of the largest and most attractive in our line in Southern California towns

The stock will be complete and up-to-date. The new fixtures will be fully installed within a few days and the consolidated stocks of our two old stores will be in place. We will be glad to receive visitors at the new store at any time, since the moving process is not allowed to interfere with the conduct of business.
